

Hawk

A small hawk circles
Above
His shadow is visible
Below
Through the window
A tiny speck of dark
Moving over a table

It sees the gap
Between two buildings
And like a jet
Twists, descends
Entering at an angle
And disappears

The bird is there
In that gap
Perched on a branch
Observing
In safety
Its prey